DAYS BETWEEN STATIONS By Steve Erickson

The desert has overtaken Los Angeles and buried its freeways, and a strange darkness has flooded Europe and set its streets on fire-and a young woman's face, a misbegotten childhood in a Parisian brothel, and the fragment of a lost movie masterpiece are the only clues in a man's search for his past.

Editorial Review

From Publishers Weekly

Plagued by amnesia, Michel Sarasan has an affair with a married woman, then goes to Paris to try to jog his memory. PW commented: "A plot rampant with ambiguities and bizarre harbingers of doomsday in a futuristic world and the author's surrealistic style make this first novel impenetrable."

Copyright 1986 Reed Business Information, Inc.

Review

"There isn't a risk that Steve Erickson hasn't taken in this novel; one gets the feeling that he's laid everything on the line." -Carolyn See, Los Angeles Times

About the Author

Steve Erickson is the author of six other acclaimed novels -- including Days Between Stations and Tours of the Black Clock -- as well as two books about American politics and popular culture. The editor of the literary magazine Black Clock, he also writes about film for Los Angeles and teaches at CalArts.
