Egg Drop By Mini Grey

Now for something completely different from Mini Grey!

A mother hen tells her chicks about the egg that wanted to fly. “The egg was young. It didn’t know much. We tried to tell it, but of course it didn’t listen.” The egg loves looking up at the birds (yes, it has eyes). It climbs 303 steps (yes, it has legs) to the top of a very tall tower—and jumps. It feels an enormous egg rush. “Whee!” it cries. “I am flying!” But it is not flying, it is falling. Hold your tears, dear reader—there is a sunny ending for this modern-day Humpty Dumpty. Impossible to categorize, Egg Drop is Mini Grey at her zaniest.

Editorial Review

Review

Starred Review, The Bulletin of the Center of Children's Books, September 2009:

"Kids in general will roar with laughter at this expectation-busting tale."

From the Inside Flap

The surreal story of the egg that wanted to fly.

The egg has always dreamed of being able to fly, but it doesn't really know much about making the dream a reality. The only method that seems guaranteed to work is to get to a very high place and then jump! Now, that may not sound like a good thing for an egg to do, but then the egg is young and doesn't know very much.

From the Back Cover

"Mini Grey's illustrations, with their varied perspectives and bold use of space, are exhilarating." --
Guardian
